THE HOBBS FAMILY.

Josiah Hobbs, the emigrant ancestor of this family, was born in England in 1649. He came to this country in the ship Arabella, Richard Sprague, master, which left Gravesend 27 May, 1671, and arrived at Boston in July. Josiah Hobbs resided in Boston during the next eighteen years. He married in 1683, and had a son Josiah,[2] born in Boston in 1684. In 1690 he moved to Lexington, then the west precinct of Cambridge, where he lived the residue of his days, with the exception of a residence of two years in the westerly part of Woburn, now Burlington. In 1691, he subscribed towards building the First Meeting House in Lexington. In 1692 and '3 he contributed to the support of Rev. Mr. Easterbrooks, the first settled minister of that town. In the records of the church, kept by Rev. Mr. Easterbrooks, we find the following: "August 1699--Baptized Josiah Hobbs and his wife Tabitha, and received them into the church in full communion. Sept. 17th, 1699, baptized Josiah, Tabitha and Mary Hobbs. Oct., 1700, baptized Matthew and Susanna Hobbs. Jan. 8th, 1710, baptized Ebenezer Hobbs. April 13, 1712 baptized Tabitha Hobbs." From the above it appears that Josiah, the emigrant, had seven children. After a careful examination of the records in Boston, Lexington and the adjacent towns, we have come to the conclusion that none of the sons lived to have families with the exception of Josiah. The elder Hobbs, according to the representations given, was of a slight figure, and somewhat below the medium size. He died at Lexington on the 30th May, 1741, aged 92 years.

(2) Josiah,[2] (3) b. in Boston in 1684; moved to Lexington, Mass., with his father, in 1690, where he resided until about 1705. Being then 21 years of age, he returned to Boston, and there remained for the next 25 years. In 1708, he married Esther Davenport, of Dorchester, and resided at the north end of Boston, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits. When far advanced in years he used to relate many interesting events of his early days. He stated that himself, and his boys, drove the cows to pasture from the north end of Boston to Muddy Brook, now Brookline, and also to Roxbury; and that he had hoed corn on Cornhill. He and his wife joined the New North Church (Cotton Mather's), where all his children, but one, were christened. In 1730, he took up his residence in the town of Weston, with his family, consisting of three sons and four daughters; their youngest son, Nathan, being born the year after their removal. Mr. H. purchased his farm, in Weston, of a Mr. Cheeny. This spot has been looked upon as the home ofthe family, from that day to this,--no records of which having been kept, the traditions have passed down to us through the said Josiah. He held with strictness to the faith and worship of our Puritan fathers, and was careful to observe the rules and to practise all the austerities that belonged to the sect at that day. Soon after their settlement at Weston, Mr. H. and his wife connected themselves with the church in that place, of which the Rev. William Williams and the Rev. Samuel Woodward were pastors. Mr. Hobbs died 27 Feb., 1779, aged 94 years. His widow deceased 29 Nov. 1778, aged 88.

Lincoln, in 1734. He died from an injury received on the 19th of Oct., 1762, aged 53 years. His widow departed this life, 4th Oct., 1776, aged 68.

(4) II. & III. Josiah[3], (18) and John[3], (24) twins, were born on Governor's Island, in Boston Harbor, in 1721, whither their parents had removed for a temporary residence. In 1743, they joined the church in Weston. Soon after this, they bought adjoining farms in the southeast part of Brookfield, which went in that day by the local name of Podunk. Josiah[3] and John[3], married about 1744 or '45. Josiah[3] m. Mary Harrington, of Weston, who died in 1804, aged 81 years. John[3] m. Beulah Warren, of the same town. These twin brothers connected themselves with the church of Rev. Nathan Fiske, who went from Weston to Brookfield and settled there about the same time. They were both deacons of this church, at different periods of their lives, and were exemplary christian men; patterns worthy of imitation. They were each in active service during some portion of the Revolutionary war. John[3] was at the taking of Burgoyne and his army, and was engaged in the active military operations which immediately preceded and led to the surrender. He caught a severe cold by his exposures in the camp and field, from which he never recovered. He was able, however, to reach his home, in Brookfield, where, after lingering a few weeks, he died, in 1777, in the 57th year of his age. Josiah[3] continued to reside in Brookfield till his death, in 1802, aged 81 years. They had large families and a numerous posterity remain in that town and neighborhood.

(5) IV. Esther[3], b. in Boston, 22 Oct. 1722, m.--- Gibbs, and settled in Framingham.

(6) V. Sarah[3], b. in Boston, 10 May, 1724, m.--- Stone, of Weston, who afterwards settled in Vermont. They had one son, Joseph[4], who lived and died in Weston.

(7) VI. Doreas[3], b. in Boston, in 1726, m.---Parks, and settled in the town of Lincoln, where she died.

(8) VII. Hannah[3], b. in Boston, 25 Jan. 1729, m. Jeremiah Wetmore, at Weston. They settled in Middletown, Ct. The late Judge Wetmore, of Boston, was her son. Thomas Wetmore, of Boston, and the widow of the late Judge Story, of Cambridge, are her grandchildren.

(9) VIII. Nathan[3], (31) b. in Weston, in 1731, m. Elizabeth Fiske, of Waltham. They had ten children, four sons and six daus.; three of the daughters died young.

Children of Ebenezer[3] (3) and Eunice (Garfield) Hobbs.

(10) I. Isaac,[4] (38) b. in 1735, m. Mary Sanderson, of Waltham, in 1757. They had several children who died in infancy, and one dau. and two sons who lived to adult age. He was a deacon of the church in Weston, and town clerk nearly forty years. His wife died 4 Feb., 1813, aged 75 years. He died 30 Sept. following, aged 78.

(2) II. Ebenezer,[4] b. in 1736; d. 28 Oct., 1756.

(12) III. Elisha,[4] (41) b. in 1743; m. Lois Hastings, of Waltham, in 1764. He settled in Princeton before the Revolutionary War, where he spent the residue of his days. He was for many years a deacon of the church in that town. His wife died in 1807, aged 64.

(13) IV. & V. Susannah[4] and Hepsibeth,[4] both died in infancy.

(14) VI. Matthew,[4] (47) b. in 1745; m. Lydia Wesson, of Lincoln, for his first wife, in 1766; she died in 1782, aged 35. They had several children by this marriage, only two of whom lived to adult age. (see 47.) His second wife, by whom he had one son, was widow Lucy Holmes, of Boston, who died in 1812, aged 71. He was a soldier of the Revolution. On the morning of the 19th April, 1775, he started for Concord, and with others took an active part in the engagement, after the British troops had cross the North Bridge He was one of the number who pursued the retreating enemy as far as West Cambridge, where, being relieved by other companies, they returned to Concord the same night. Mr. Hobbs then enlisted in the company of Capt. Charles Miles, of Concord, being one of the subaltern officers, and for a time was under the command of Col. Reed. In Feb., 1776, he joined the Weston company, commanded by Jonathan Fiske, and was made an ensign of that company. Capt. Fiske's company, with other Middlesex troops, was under the command of Col. Eleazer Brooks, of Lincoln, Samuel Lamson, of Weston, Major. This regiment, with other troops, was ordered to take possession of Dorchester Heights.

He was at White Plains in Sept. of that year. In 1780, he enlisted for three years, or during the war, and was made captain of the Weston company; his two lieutenants, by the name of Livermore, belonged to Weston. This company was employed in the western and northern parts of New York State, at Ticonderoga, Crown Point, and other posts leading to Canada. They saw much service, and returned to their homes at the close of the war, in 1782. Capt. Hobbs, like many others, came out of the army without a shilling in his pocket. Still he never complained. He died in 1817, six years before the law was passed giving pensions to the revolutionary officers and soldiers.

(15) V11. Elizabeth,[4] b. in 1748; m. Phineas Gregory, who settled in Princeton in 1767. They had two sons; the eldest removed to Concord, Mass.; no issue. The other son, Phineas,[5] settled on a farm in Princeton, and had sons and daughters.

(16) VIII. Samuel,[4] (50) born in 1751; mar. Lucy Monroe, of Lexington, who died in 1812, aged 60. He was a farmer; but the business of a tanner and currier he also followed with some success. He was an ardent patriot, and, in 1773, while a journeyman in the employ of Simeon Pratt, of Roxbury, joined the famous party, who, in disguise, threw overboard the tea in Boston. He used to say that the whole chests of bohea, weighing 360 lbs., were rather heavy to lift. He settled in Sturbridge, where his four sons remained. He was a most excellent man, and ever held an elevated position in society. He died in May, 1823, aged 72 years.

(17) IX. Esther,[4] b. in 1753; m. Capt. Bowker, of Sudbury, and moved into the western part of the State of New York, then a wilderness. She, with her husband, made a visit to Weston in 1795; returned, and never came back again. Nothing is known of their posterity.

(36) Vl. John[4], b. in 1771, d. unmd. in Nov., 1802. He was a child of misfortune. In his early days he was afflicted with a painful fever-sore, which made him a cripple for the rest of his life. About the same time he almost entirely lost the sense of hearing. To crown the whole, in Oct., 1802, he was bitten by a dog, which was a pet in the family, a gentle animal, but which proved to be rabid. The dog, it appears, snapped at a fly, on his hand, leaving the print of his tooth between the thumb and forefinger. It did not raise blood on the surface, but left a redness, which alarmed his friends. He, however, laughed at their fears, thinking that nothing serious could come of so small a matter. But those fears, alas, were too fully realized. In less than three weeks from the time he was bitten, he was seized with an attack of hydrophobia. The disease in this case was similar in its progress and results to the published accounts given of others who have died under this awful malady. The spasms continued, at intervals, for about six days, when he expired.
